

6516208338.txt

XM and or satellite radio provides a valuable service with regards to weather and traffic. There are no other broadcasters who fill this much defined niche market. To squash or quell this service does harm too many and benefits only a few. Healthy competition strengthens companies; regulation deters new advances, stifles competition, and in this case returns us to a status quo that did not meet the needs of the market.